

A Multicultural Audit of the City of Riverside - 2002

Introduction

This report presents an update to the Multicultural Audit of the City of Riverside presented in Fall 2000. It is designed for two main purposes: to provide a snapshot of ethnic diversity within the City, and to help the Mayor's Multicultural Forum, the City, and other interested groups develop policies to advance multicultural diversity in the Riverside community.

While there are many facets to diversity, this report focuses on ethnic distribution within the City. For a more extensive focus on education, economics, housing, health, and criminal justice within the community, please refer to the Riverside Human Relations Commission's "2002 Human Relations Report Card."

As an update of the 2000 audit, this report follows the same blueprint as the original. It provides the City and the public with both a statistical and a qualitative sense of the breadth and depth of diversity that exists within the City.

Much of the data in this report is a result of the federal government's Census 2000, which is the most complete and comprehensive demographic data available. For the demographic makeup of City employees, Boards and Commissions, and schools and universities, figures are based on the most current data.

Also included in this report is a copy of "Building A More Inclusive Riverside Community", distributed by the Mayor's Multicultural Forum. This statement offers the principles that the Mayor's Multicultural Forum has designated as vital in creating an inclusive community.

This report focuses on five aspects of Riverside's multicultural community:

- Ethnic demographics of Riverside
- Ethnic demographics of City government
- Ethnic demographics of education
- Multicultural history
- Non-governmental multicultural community organizations

Section I: Ethnic Demographics of Riverside

Demographic data on the ethnic makeup of the population is provided in the first section of this report. This section compares the ethnic makeup of the City with the state of California, and is based on information from the 2000 Census.

Section II: Ethnic Demographics of City Government

Section Two of this report focuses on ethnic distribution within the City government, including both city employees and Boards and Commissions. It is important to note that due to the small size of some departments, percentages reported may not give an accurate reflection of the diversity within them.

Section III: Ethnic Demographics of Education

The diversity of Riverside's K-12 public schools and four institutions of higher learning are presented in the third section of this report. This information was obtained from the California Department of Education, the University of California, Riverside, California Baptist University, Riverside Community College, and La Sierra University. This section focuses exclusively on the ethnic composition of student populations, as the ethnic makeup of faculty of colleges and universities was not available.

Section IV: Multicultural History

Due to its early economic importance afforded by a booming citrus industry, Riverside has a rich and diverse cultural history. Riverside's strong citrus industry attracted a variety of immigrant groups, many of whom began to solidify their presence in Riverside by creating social and religious organizations.

In the 2000 Multicultural Audit of the City, Meghana Acharya compiled a large index of research done on Riverside's multicultural history. Her work is reprinted in this report, with minimal additions.

Section V: Non-Governmental Multicultural Community Organizations

The final section of this report presents an inventory, though not an exhaustive one, of community based social, political, professional, and religious organizations. According to Robert Putnam in Bowling Alone, organizations such as these are indicative of a community's social capital, which is a vital component of a strong and vibrant community. In 1998, Riverside was recognized by the National Civics League for the strength of its social capital, and was recognized as an All-American City. It is important to note that this report presents both the index of community organizations from the 2000 Multicultural Audit, and an addendum incorporating new additions to this list. This report is designed to be continuously updated.

Appendix

An appendix accompanies the five sections of this report, in order to provide a more thorough explanation of definitions, graphs, and data. When applicable, notations are provided to consult the appendix for further information.

Additions to the 2000 Multicultural Audit

In addition to updating the data and graphs of the 2000 multicultural audit, the following are unique to this report:

- Use of ethnicity, rather than race, is used as the tool for comparison
- Including those who reported “Two or more races” in comparisons of race and ethnicity
- Ethnic demographics for California Baptist University
- Ethnic demographics for Alvord Unified School District

Ethnicity and Race

A thorough explanation of the definitions of race and ethnicity upon which this report is based is found in the Appendix. Ethnicity, rather than race, is used for this report because it allows for those of Hispanic or Latino origin to be recognized as a distinct category rather than being included in the White/Caucasian population.

Section One: Ethnic Demographics of Riverside

Ethnic Distribution: California v. Riverside

When comparing those who identified themselves as of Hispanic or Latino origin to the population of each race that identified themselves as “Non-Hispanic”, both California and Riverside show no majority ethnic population. The percentage of the population that identified themselves as White is similar for Riverside and California, with Riverside’s White population 1.1% less than California’s. Riverside has a slightly higher African American population percentage than California’s, and a significantly smaller Asian population percentage. Riverside’s Hispanic population percentage exceeds the state by 5.7%, and is only 7.5% smaller than the city’s largest ethnic population. Both the American Indian and Pacific Islander populations of Riverside show little difference from the percentage of each ethnicity for the state.

Section Two: Ethnic Demographics of City Government

Ethnic Distribution: City v. City Employees

Total Employees:
2,399

Overall, the racial and ethnic makeup of City employees is not proportionate to that of the general population of Riverside. Caucasian representation in City employment is 16% higher than that of the general population, while Hispanic representation in City employment is 15% less than that of the general population. Asian/Pacific and African American representation in City employment is roughly proportionate to that of the general population. The proportion of Native Americans was roughly equal for the population and City employees.

Ethnic Distribution: Boards and Commissions

Total
Members :
121

While Riverside's population has no ethnic majority, the members of the City's Boards and Commissions are predominately White. Using an estimation of Board member's ethnicities, Riverside's Boards and Commissions have a 70% White representation, followed by an almost equal rate of African American and Hispanic members. Due to the small sample size of Board members, the overall representation rates may not accurately reflect diversity found within individual Boards and Commissions.

Section Three: Ethnic Demographics of Education

Ethnic Distribution in Public Schools:

California v. RUSD

Total population of California's Public Schools:
6,147,375

Total enrollment
of RUSD:
39,688

* Note – Racial and ethnic categorizations are those used by the California Department of Education

Riverside's public school enrollment rates generally adhere to those of California. The Hispanic population of Riverside Unified School District mirrors the state's rates exactly. RUSD has a higher White enrollment rate than that of the state by 5.6%, and a higher African American enrollment rate than the state by 1.9%. The Asian, Filipino, and Pacific Islander enrollment rates all fall well below the enrollment rates of the state, which could be an effect of Riverside's lower Asian population percentage than the Asian population percentage of California.

California v. Alvord Unified School District

Total Population of California's Public Schools:
6,147, 375

* Note – Racial and ethnic categorizations are those used by the California Department of Education

Total
enrollment of Alvord Unified:
18,130

In Alvord Unified School District, the smaller of Riverside's two school districts, there is a greater rate of Hispanic enrollment than in both RUSD and the state of California. Hispanics have a 27.2 percent greater rate of enrollment than the next largest ethnic group. Asian enrollment rates are significantly lower in Alvord than for the state at large. Both White and African American rates are between 3 and 4% lower than state enrollment rates.

Source: California Dept of Education, Education Demographics Unit

Ethnic Distribution: Riverside's High Schools

*Note: Racial and ethnic categorizations are those used by the California Department of Education

Ethnic distribution varies between Riverside's seven high schools. There is no clear ethnic majority that composes every high school, as some schools have a Hispanic student majority while some have a White student majority. King High School has 63.4% White enrollment, whereas Norte Vista High School has a 63.1% Hispanic student enrollment. North High School has the highest African American enrollment rate, at 15.3% of the student body. King High School has the highest percentage of one ethnicity, as the 63.4% White student enrollment rate is 44.5% greater than the next largest ethnic group. The majority of high schools in the City do not have one student ethnic group that contributes over 50% of the student body.

Source: California Dept of Education, Education Demographics Unit

Ethnic Distribution of Faculty: California v. RUSD

* Note – Racial and ethnic categorizations are those used by the California Department of Education

The ethnic makeup and racial makeup of Riverside Unified School District's faculty does not reflect its student body. The faculty of RUSD is 75.6% White, while its student population is 40.4% White. The percentage of Hispanic faculty members to Hispanic students differs by 29.3%. Overall, RUSD has a very similar ethnic distribution to the state. RUSD has a slightly higher White, African American, Hispanic, and American Indian faculty rate than California, and a slightly lower Filipino and Asian faculty rate. The Pacific Islander faculty rate of RUSD and California is the same.

Source: California Department of Education, Educational Demographics Unit

Ethnic Distribution of Faculty: California v. Alvord

* Note – Racial and ethnic categorizations are those used by the California Department of Education

The ethnic distribution of Alvord Unified School District's faculty does not reflect its student body. The faculty of Alvord Unified is 79.1% White, while its student body is 30.6% White. The percentage of Hispanic faculty members to Hispanic students differs by 46.1%. Overall, Alvord Unified has a similar faculty composition as the state at large. Alvord has a 4.9% higher White faculty rate than the state, and slightly lower rates for all other ethnic groups.

Ethnic Distribution: Colleges and Universities

UC Riverside:

Student Enrollment:
15,934

*Note –Does not include those students who declined to state their ethnicity.

City Population:
255,166

U.C. Riverside has a significantly higher (33.6%) Asian enrollment rate than the City's Asian representation. The student enrollment rates of the White, Hispanic, and African American populations all fall below their representation rates in the City to varying degrees. African American enrollment rates fall 1.4% below the African American percentage of the City population, while both the White and Hispanic enrollment rates fall at least 15% below their City representations. Native American student enrollment is proportional to Riverside's Native American population.

Source: UC Riverside, Office of Marketing and Media Relations, (909) 787-5185

La Sierra University:

Total Enrollment:
1,200

City Population:
255,166

The enrollment rates of each ethnicity is more proportional to each other at La Sierra University than the proportion of ethnicities to each other in the City of Riverside. The White, African American, Hispanic, and Asian enrollment rates at La Sierra University all fall within 18.6% of each other, compared to a 40% difference within the City. La Sierra University has a higher African American and Asian enrollment rate than their respective City representations. The White and Hispanic enrollment rates both fall approximately 15% lower than their respective representations in the City.

*For additional information regarding ethnic definitions, please see the Appendix.

California Baptist University:

Total
Enrollment:
2165

City
Population:
255,166

California Baptist University has the highest proportion of one ethnicity of the colleges and universities in Riverside, with 61.4% White student representation. The Hispanic student population is 24.4% lower than the Hispanic population percentage of the City of Riverside. California Baptist University has a .2% higher African American representation than the City at large, and a 2.7% lower Asian representation than Riverside. American Indian student enrollment is similar to the City's American Indian population, differing by .8%.

*For additional information regarding ethnic definitions, please see the Appendix.

Riverside Community College District:

Total enrollment:
31,725

City Population:
255,166

The three campuses of the Riverside Community College District have a student enrollment of 31,725. As ethnic distribution figures are not available for solely the Riverside City Campus, the ethnic distribution of the three campuses as a whole is used. Overall, Riverside Community College's enrollment rates are similar to the ethnic representations of Riverside. RCC has a higher African American, Asian, and Native American enrollment rate than each group's population percentage in the City. White enrollment rates are down 2.8% from the White representation in the City, and Hispanic enrollment rates are down 7% from the Hispanic representation in the City.

Section Four: Multicultural History of Riverside

Multicultural Riverside, A Select Bibliography

Due to its early prominence in the citrus industry, Riverside has a rich and diverse cultural history. Riverside's booming economy attracted a variety of immigrant groups, many of whom created social and religious organizations which solidified their presence in Riverside.

In creating the 2000 Multicultural Audit of the City, Meghana Acharya researched Riverside's ethnic diversity, focusing both on the scholastic work done on Riverside's community and the ongoing social and religious groups which are found in the City today. Her work is reprinted here.

Section One:

Census 2000: Explanations of Race and Ethnic Categories:

In creating the guidelines for Census 2000, the federal government considered race and Hispanic origin to be separate and distinct concepts. Individuals chose from six racial categories by which to identify themselves, and stated their ethnicity as either Hispanic or Non-Hispanic. The population that is considered of Hispanic origin is made up of individuals from all six racial identifications.

The federal government's six racial categories were as follows:

- 1) White: Refers to people having origins in any of the original peoples of Europe, The Middle East, or North Africa. It includes people who indicated their race as White as well as those who wrote in entries such as Irish, Italian, Lebanese, Near Easterner, Arab, or Polish.
- 2) Black or African American: Refers to people having origins in any of the Black racial groups of Africa. It includes people who indicated their race or races as Black, African American or Negro, or wrote in such entries as Afro American, Haitian, or Nigerian.
- 3) American Indian or Alaskan Native: Refers to people having origins in any of the original peoples of North and South America (including Central America) and who maintain tribal affiliation or community attachment. It includes people who indicated this race as well as those who wrote in their principal or enrolled tribe, such as Rosebud Sioux, Chippewa, or Navajo.
- 4) Asian: Refers to people having ancestors in any of the original peoples of the Far East, Southeast Asia, or Indian subcontinent. It includes those who indicated their race as Asian Indian, Chinese, Filipino, Korean, Japanese, Vietnamese, Pakistani, Burmese, or Thai.
- 5) Native Hawaiian or other Pacific Islander: Refers to people having origins in any of the original peoples of Hawaii, Guam, Samoa or other Pacific Islands.
- 6) "Some other race": Refers to those who were unable to identify with any of the five other race categories. Respondents who wrote in entries such as South African, Moroccan, Belizean, or a Hispanic origin (for example, Mexican, Puerto Rican, or Cuban) are included in the "Some other race" category.

It is important to note that the Hispanic population is comprised of all six racial categories. Nearly half (48%) of the Hispanic population reported their racial identity as only White, while approximately 42% reported "Some other race." 2.0% reported Black or African American, while 1.2% reported American Indian or Alaskan Native. Approximately 6% of Hispanics reported two or more races. Of the 6.8 million residents nationwide who reported more than one race, 33% were Hispanics.

For the purposes of a multicultural audit of the City of Riverside, figures that represent the breadth of ethnicities within the City allow a more telling presentation of the City's population. Demographics of the City are thus presented as both the composition of the City by its racial composition, as well as by its ethnic distribution, which includes those who identified themselves as of Hispanic origin. For the purposes of comparison in the City, the ethnic distribution, rather than its racial composition, of the City is used. The reason for this is to give a presentation of the City that is more accurate, reflecting that 32.4% of the City's population referred to themselves as of Hispanic origin. Those of Hispanic origin are compared to those in each racial category who labeled themselves as "Race/Non-Hispanic". For example, the Hispanic population is compared to those who labeled themselves "White/Non-Hispanic". For the figures and graphs used in this audit, ethnic distribution is used when showing the racial and ethnic makeup of the City, except for the page labeled "Racial Composition: California v. Riverside", which shows the population distribution by the Census 2000 racial categories.

For figures comparing racial and ethnic distribution within Riverside's public schools, categories are limited to those used by the California Department of Education, which supplied these figures. The California Department of Education categorizes students and faculty into seven categories: White, African American, Hispanic, Filipino, Pacific Islander, Asian, and American Indian. These categories are similar to those used in Census 2000, with the addition of the Filipino identification. In Census 2000, those who wrote in Filipino were included in the population that signified itself as Asian.

Explanation of Ethnic Categories, Colleges and Universities:

Each college and university in the City has slightly different definitions of ethnic categories. A summary follows:

UC Riverside:

- Follows the definitions of Census 2000, and includes those of Middle Eastern or Arabic descent into its "White/Caucasian" category.
- Does not include those who declined to state their ethnicity

California Baptist University:

- Those of Middle Eastern or Arabic descent are included in the "Asian/Pacific Islander" category

- “Unknown” refers to those who defined to state, or are two or more races

La Sierra University:

- Those of Middle Eastern, Indian, or Arabic descent are included in the “Other” category. This category also includes those who are of two or more races, as well as those who declined to state or did not respond when asked for their ethnicity.

Riverside Community College:

- Follows the definitions of Census 2000, and includes those of Middle Eastern or Arabic descent into its “White/Caucasian” category.
